

New Zealand Short Term Training Scholarships

Online Good Governance

Course Overview

The Good Governance Course has been created to promote principles of stewardship – good governance, ethics, integrity, and transparency – for scholars in their professional work and draw on good practice examples drawn from the New Zealand case studies. The programme is also designed with an emphasis on inclusion and the empowerment of participants.

This is an intensive, online, short course designed for participants from ASEAN countries and Timor-Leste who are currently in middle and senior management positions.

The design, management and delivery of the course is run by staff of the Public Policy Institute at the University of Auckland. Leading expertise from the University of Auckland, the School of Population Health, and the Business School as well as industry experts who are considered world-class authorities will also be invited to present on various aspects of content to ensure the highest quality content.

Intended Participants

This course is suitable for officials with at least 5 years' work experience in the relevant course sector. Participants should have basic level computer literacy and numeracy.

Delivery Management and Presenting Team

These courses are designed, managed, and delivered by staff of the Public Policy Institute, in conjunction with key subject experts who are invited in to present on various aspects of content.

Professor Jennifer Curtin, Director of the Public Policy Institute, oversees all aspects of the programme, is part of the introductory and completion sessions, and contributes to modules on good governance, public leadership, and inclusive trade.

Dr Suzanne Woodward and Dr Oluwakemi Igiebor are the Course Coordinators; they manage the pre-course induction process, access to our learning management system, coordinate pastoral care throughout each course, and maintain connections with scholars throughout. Suzanne and Kemi also contribute expert content on topics related to communication, participation, and inclusive leadership, and share the management of each live online session.

The Public Policy Institute appoint scholar success advisors who have knowledge of the regions from which the scholars are drawn. This is done on a course-by-course basis, to provide both intellectual and culturally sensitive care and support. The Scholar Success Adviser runs two drop-in sessions online each week and contributes to break-out room activities during each session.

Each Course has an Academic Lead: The Good Governance and Public Sector Leadership Courses are led by Professor Jennifer Curtin; the Trade Policy course is led by Associate Professor Rob Scollay, and the Public Health Management Course is led by Professor Chris Bullen. These leads contribute content and select other relevant expert academics and practitioners as contributors.
